| Vinification:       | The partial wild and malolactic fermentations along withthe extended lees maturation in barrel have addedcomplexity and texture to the wine. The palate is smoothand round with lovely balance of minerality and wellrefined acid. Juicy stonefruit citrus flavours are combinedwith mealy, creamy layers and subtle hints of French oak. |            |           |
| Appearance:         | Straw yellow.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |            |           |
| Bouquet:            | The aroma offers an abundance ofripe stonefruits and citrus. Thesefresh notes are complimented withcreamy layers from the wild andmalolactic ferments. Memoriesof baked pastries and toasted nutscome to mind.                                                                                                                                                |            |           |
| Palate:             | A deliciously smooth yet juicy palatewith flavours ofstonefruits intertwinedwith the creamy and toastycharacters.A wine with veiled complexity andrichness butwith a refreshing finish.                                                                                                                                                           |            |           |
