Vineyard:	The Botrytis Semillon fruit for this luscious wine is harvested from the same couple of vineyards each year, that have proven to produce the best Botrytis consistently year after year. Sourced from our own Estate vineyards and the vineyard of a grower with a long history of supplying De Bortoli's with fruit for Noble One.
Vinification:	Patience is the key to making a Botrytis wine, waiting for the grapes to be ready to harvest, fermenting the wine, then maturing in barrel for 12 months. At this time we assess each individual vineyard that has been nurtured through this period and blend the very best components to tie a friendship between fruit and oak, sweetness and acidity.
Appearance:	Deep golden colour.
Bouquet:	Rich and toffee-like, with some oyster-shell and seaside, ozone overtones. Toast and Vanilla later, a subtle trace of oak barrel.
Palate:	The wine is quite sweet and fluid, without quite the oiliness of the more heavily botrytised wines. The finish is dried by a touch of tannin.
