Vineyard:	Produced from the main port varieties, notably Touriga Nacional, Tinta Roriz, Tinta Co and Touriga Franca, and selected from the best parcels of Quinta de la Rosas vineyards.
Vinification:	Most of the grapes were trodden in temperature controlled granite lagares; the rest were pumped over in small stainless steel vats. The wine was matured in Allier French oak casks before being bottled in April 2009.
Bouquet:	Extremely aromatic and concentrated, it manages to hold immense freshness which makes it appear very elegant and delicate
Palate:	Firm tannins are well present enveloping sweet, seductive, ripe black cherry fruits. The wine is showing very well now despite an enormous potential for ageing.
