Vineyard:	No wine-producing country has changed more dramatically than Spain in the last 30 years, and nowhere has this been more evident than in Rioja, where a new generation of winemakers and modern technology have transformed this tradition-bound region.
Vinification:	One of the most influential new wineries of the region, Marqus de Cceres is unanimously recognised as the leading producer of modern Rioja and considered largely responsible for the Riojan renaissance of recent decades.
Appearance:	Dense, deep ruby red colour.
Bouquet:	On the nose, intense aromas of ripe fruits of the forest and Morello cherries blend with slightly toasted vanillin notes
Palate:	Fresh, full and fleshy in the mouth, this wine delivers superb tannins that highlight its structure and complexity. A Gran Reserva with an impressive personality that comes through on tasting: richness, body, elegance and intense, long-lasting, balanced flavours to delight the palate.
